4. General Works about Bronze Age and Classical Crete

For the Minoan period books by Betancourt (pottery), Graham (architecture), and Hood (history and culture) are recommended. Handbooks of the Greek sites and material culture remain to be written, but there is a general book on Roman Crete, including the Mesara area, by Sanders, and Willett's book on Cretan religion and culture remains invaluable. Specific archaeological sites in the Mesara excavated by The Italian School of Archaeology in Athens are to be found discussed in Creta Antica and Pernier and Banti's guide to the Italian excavations. For Phaistos the reader should consult the recent detailed reports by Levi, and for Hagia Triada those by Halbherr, Banti, and La Rosa in the Annuario della Scuola Archaeologica di Atene. For the Western Mesara Plain, the basic treatment is now Watrous's The Plain of Phaistos. The guide to Crete by Spanakis is highly recommended.
